

A "Fishy" story if I ever heard one!

Activity #1: Still-Life Stories

Collect together at least five objects that tell something about your favorite hobby. Arrange them into a pleasing "picture" or still life. Then take a photograph of the objects, develop it and give it to a classmate or family member who does not know you well. Ask them to write a story about the person who created this still life arrangement. What will they learn about you?

Activity #2: Still-life Self-portrait

Collect together at least five objects that tell something about you (without including a photograph of yourself!) and arrange them into a still-life set up. Sketch out your still-life, and maybe add paints or collage. How will you use objects in this still life to tell about you, your personality, and your interests?
